

CALL FOR PAPERS: SPECIAL ISSUE ON “TRANSGRESSIVE AUTO/BIOGRAPHY”

In autumn 2011, the international, open-access, peer-reviewed journal Brno Studies in English will be a special issue devoted to “Transgressive Auto/Biography.”

For this reason, we are seeking papers that investigate the transformations and cross-continental influences that have proven central to the development of auto/biographies that bide between genres. Especially in the last two decades, there has been a global renaissance in the production of texts that purposefully and self-reflexively blur the distinction between fiction and nonfiction in order to examine the multiple ways lives are written and selves are constructed, and this special issue will be devoted to those and similar developments.

We welcome papers concerned with biography in fiction, dialogic auto/biography, fictionalized biography, innovative biography, literary biography, metabiography, pastoral biography, personal nonfiction, and other forms.
